

Abstract

A broad range of brightness in a fluorescent lamp may be achieved by applying low-frequency, pulse-width modulated voltage or current to the lamp for a low level of brightness, or high-frequency voltage or current for a high level of 5 brightness. Switching is provided to select between the two signals.

09135185-081798